

The following pages contain three “Zwischenprüfung”-diplomas.

Explanation: If you are studying for a Magister-degree (equivalent to a MA or higher), then a „Zwischenprüfung“ is an intermediate exam. You take it usually after the 4th or 5th semester (so it should be equivalent to a BA).

Usually you take one such exam. I took three.

Once after I already passed the first Zwischenprüfung I downgraded my major subject to be my minor and upgraded my minor to be my major. So I had to take an additional exam in my new major.

And regarding the third Zwischenprüfung remember what I wrote in my CV:

“October 2008-March 2010: An additional BA at the Ludwig-Maximilians Universität in Munich in the subject combination Religious Studies and German as a foreign language (for teaching purposes). These studies were simultaneous but entirely independent from my main BA+MA studies mentioned above.”
